

We are a business-to-business-technological company that supplies components and services of industrial variable engineering plastic flooring for many-sided use.

By placing these vinyl panels you get an integrated, compact floor that ensures hygiene and comfort improving for stalled animals and decreasing manual work because of less frequency of excrement cleaning and new bedding. Thus animal owners will decrease their veterinary care cost because animals standing on these floors are in the environment similar to their natural one as an adequate compensation of grassland or a run because they are much softer than the common concrete floors in the stalls. In the consequence, the health problems lower as e.g. arthritis or udder inflammation as well as stress, which have a positive influence on the whole health condition especially in the case of stalled animals.

Thus a greater efficiency and better economy of the livestock production will be provided provably. It concerns especially those plants that have a status of ecological farms but also in the case of those where the main successfulness indicator is the milk and meat production rate as an input raw material for a quality food production. Although the vinyl panels' highest bulk focuses in agricultural cooperatives, with regard to their properties is their application also possible in a zoo, veterinary clinics, in animal homes, cotes, terrariums and in many other livestock facilities.

Of course these panels that are offered in many designs, various sizes and thicknesses and are further modifiable regarding perforation or channel and heavy-duty profiles, have also other many-sided use except the ones in agriculture mentioned here. The attributes of these vinyl panels are convincing and therefore the world demand for these vinyl panels from responsible breeder increases steadily. If you feel strongly not only about your animals but also about the quality, economy and particularly about the modernization of your breeding, you do it too.
